

The Lost Core of Psyche

By: Jonny Volpe

An Excerpt:

"Yes, if you stop interrupting me, I could get to that," the explorer said to his comrade's retort. "The lost core of Psyche came from a mysterious mass of metal and rock. It was 20 feet wide and thousands of pounds. So many scientists wanted to do research on it that Terra became home to the most brilliant people in the world."

Athena's spirit was captivated as she continued to overhear the explorer's story.

"Wait... your telling me the smartest people in the world cared that much about a big rock?"

"It wasn't just a big rock you see. It was something from... up there!" As he said this, he pointed to the thousands of stars shining above in the sky. They both paused, gazing upward, astounded by the beauty that they hadn't yet recognized.

★ ★ ★

Athena's mind was running a thousand miles an hour. As she walked back, she couldn't help but talk to herself asking, "Terra? Science? How could that be? But what if...? No.... But what if I found...? I need to find... That's it, I AM GOING TO FIND PSYCHE!"