

Weber, Max. The Protestant Ethic and the Spirit of Capitalism. [Student's ed.] ed., Scribner, 1958.

Did you hear the one about Jesus he worked at the drugstore and rearranged all the gum on the display to be a rainbow and tied little blessings he made himself (yes, Himself) onto the bag handles and swept the floor and hummed some hymns, you know, הִנֵּה מָה טוֹב, you know, Losing My Religion, you know, Halo, and he wouldn't charge us tax and would give us pennies in exchange for cat videos and cooking videos and cat cooking videos and promises to Donate Your Books To Your Local Library and one time i asked him about the braids in his hair and did you hear he said his daughter did them he says when she comes to visit she likes the gum all in rainbows and she is a blessing my blessing my blessing what is your blessing what are your small and beautiful things and do they make the world bright and bright and kind?